

Abstract

An auxiliary device for editing document comprises a computer peripheral and a modular key set with document editing function. The modular key set is arranged on the computer peripheral and connected to an I/O bus of the 5 single-chip microprocessor. Therefore, user can directly use the modular key set to edit document without invoking a composite key or mouse.